

BIKING & CYCLING TRAIL RESOURCES

Beaumont is proud to offer bicycle routes that will take riders through three distinct eco-regions of Southeast Texas. The Beaumont Convention & Visitors Bureau has worked closely with the local cycling community to obtain the most popular road routes that are peddled on a regular basis. With these suggestions, route instructions and maps have been created so everyone can get fit while enjoying the natural landscape.

Resources

It is advised that all cyclists obtain the appropriate food and water resources before departing. Distances between commercial resources to restock can be vast, and therefore can result in an unpleasant experience if cyclists are not prepared. There are convenience stores located throughout the route in the more populated areas, and are identified on the map. Riders should plan to utilize these resources in order to rest, refuel, and use the restroom.

Special Considerations

Beaumont offers great opportunities for cyclists to experience the Coastal Plain Region of Southeast Texas. However, there are special considerations that need to be taken in order to ensure a pleasant and memorable riding experience. Such considerations include numerous water crossings, narrow roads, and commercial activities.

- Water Crossings Southeast Texas is fortunate to have many streams, rivers, bayous, and lakes, but this can cause unsafe road conditions for cyclist. The narrow bridges that cross these features often have no shoulders which can lead to close interactions between motorists and cyclists. Cyclists are encouraged to ride single file when encountering these obstacles.
- Narrow Roads With the exception of most of the major roadways, the other smaller and more rural roads do not provide a wide shoulder for cyclist to ride on. These roads can also have narrow turns that limit visibility, and have rough surfaces. Cyclists should watch for hazards that could come from in front or behind when encountering these obstacles.
- Commercial Activities Farming, ranching, logging, and oil production are important economic activities that occur throughout Jefferson County. These industries require large trucks that haul substantial loads; especially on the narrow Farm-to-Market Roads. These large trucks make it difficult to provide plenty of room for cyclist, and they often shed various debris. There are also numerous railroad crossings that cyclist will have to maneuver. Cyclists are encouraged to ride with a mirror so they can see these large trucks coming, and get off and walk their bicycles when crossing railroads.
