TOURISM MEANS JOBS

Did you know that the Pelican Grand Beach Resort has 170 team members?

GREATER FORT LAUDERDALE WARMS UP NYC AT GRAND CENTRAL STATION

Greater Fort Lauderdale's "The Beach Looks Good On You" tour created a buzz last week attracting winter-weary New Yorkers to a tropical oasis with a beach-chic vibe at Grand Central Station's Vanderbilt Hall and John F. Kennedy International Airport's Terminal 5. The events featured live music, palm trees, beach cabanas, a hibiscus cat, a huge beachcam screen streaming live images of Fort Lauderdale's beaches, giant sunglasses for photo ops, solar-powered charging stations for mobile devices, vending machines dispensing free "Hello Sunny" sunglasses for consumers who tweet #HelloSunny, and much more. Crew from JetBlue gave away Greater Fort Lauderdale vacation getaways every hour, along with blue chips and bottled water. The one-day event brought a Greater Fort Lauderdale beach day to thousands of Grand Central Terminal commuters. Metro North train station platforms feature 200 The Beach Looks Good on You posters. Street teams outside Grand Central shared the sunshine with free Greater Fort Lauderdale sunglasses and giveaways for chances to win a Greater Fort Lauderdale beach getaway.

The spectacular Greater Fort Lauderdale billboard is wrapped around Toys R Us at 44th and Broadway and the iconic "Beach-on-Wheels" cruised the streets of New York day and night, branded with destination messaging and filled with the sand of Greater Fort Lauderdale's Blue Wave certified beaches. For one month, New Yorkers can warm their buns on a custom-designed heated bus shelter near Grand Central Terminal that look like sun lounges on the beach. Free beach-themed pedi-cab rickshaw rides around the city were available. Greater Fort Lauderdale's beach is featured on billboards at Times Square and near the Lincoln Tunnel, tempting Super Bowl fans headed to the big game. Advertising in TV, newspaper, magazine and digital in the tri-state area and hundreds of branded taxi tops will ensure Greater Fort Lauderdale shines brightly during the heart of winter.

BRINGING THE BEACH TO JFK AIRPORT JETBLUE TERMINAL 5

The following day, the Hello Sunny beach scene moved to JetBlue Airways' JFK Terminal 5 for one week, through Super Bowl Monday. Click here to see more pics.

WE MADE THE NEWS

In NYC, we started the day bright and early with our team at Good Morning America's plaza. Virginia Sheridan did a live TV interview with NBC's LXTV "New York Live" with Ben Aaron (click here to view), along with coverage in the Wall Street Journal, Yahoo Travel, Daily Meal, South Florida Business Journal, NTDTV \(Chinese TV\), Epoch Times and many travel blogs.

NEXT STOP ON THE HELLO SUNNY TOUR: CHICAGO

Our team is preparing to hit the streets in Chicago, Wednesday, February 19 on Michigan Avenue, next to the Tribune Tower. We'll be bringing some warmth and giving away free sunglasses and ice scrapers and a chance to win a beach getaway <http://sunny.org/warmupchicago>. Chicagoans will have the chance to meet the Blackhawk Ice Crew, Tommy Hawk and NHL Hall of Famer Denis Savard, while warming up with Greater Fort Lauderdale. Our beach mobile will be onsite along with frozen bikinis, warm your buns benches, live beach cam on giant plasma screen, photo kiosks and real swimsuit models. The tour continues to Washington D.C. on March 18, and to São Paulo, Brazil, on April 29.

A FOND FAREWELL TO OUR MARKETING COMMUNICATIONS GURU

Congratulations to Francine Mason as she moves on after 25 years of creative and innovative marketing at the GFLCVB. While we will all miss Francine dearly, we reflect proudly on her many accomplishments, from shedding the rowdy "Spring Break" image to the Convention Center groundbreaking to the current Hello Sunny brand. Her contributions to the transformation of Greater Fort Lauderdale have led to record-breaking visitor numbers and scores of destination awards over the years, and her marketing savvy and forward-thinking approach will forever be part of our tourism fabric.
